

CRIMINAL DEFENSE LAW

Allegations for any criminal offense, misdemeanor or felony, may have lasting detrimental consequences to a citizen and his or her family. In addition to facing the stress of dealing with criminal charges and a case in court, you are faced with the possibility of being sent to county jail or prison if you are convicted. Additional criminal penalties may be enforced as well, including fines, probation, sex offender registration, mandatory counseling, rehabilitation, or driver's license suspension. Dealing with these penalties and also the burden of having a criminal record can be confusing and overwhelming.

Allegations for any criminal offense, misdemeanor or felony, may have lasting detrimental consequences to a citizen and his or her family. The criminal defense attorneys at Parker Law Firm aggressively defend the constitutional rights of the accused.

James E. Moore, IV, is a former deputy prosecuting attorney on staff as a private defense attorney with Parker Law Firm. Mr. Moore understands the criminal justice system from both sides – prosecution and defense. Experience working with prosecuting attorneys and judges allows the risks associated with any particular case to be reasonably calculated. In addition, alternative sentences can be explored in an effort to offer clients the least amount of permanent damage to their reputation and record, while at the same time providing rehabilitation. From initial appearance to plea bargains and trial, Parker Law Firm will work diligently to protect your rights and avoid a conviction.

Our attorneys have handled numerous criminal cases in both the State and Federal Courts located in Arkansas. We regularly defend clients in Central and Northwest Arkansas, including Lonoke, Pulaski, Washington, Benton, Carroll and Madison County Circuit Courts along with all the associated district courts including Lonoke, Little Rock, Fayetteville, Springdale, Rogers, Bentonville, Huntsville, Eureka Springs, Gentry, Siloam Springs, Farmington, Prairie Grove, Elkins, Pea Ridge, and Lowell. We also handle federal charges in the United States District Courts for the Western and Eastern Districts of Arkansas.

The attorneys at Parker Law Firm take pride in providing justice for those accused of a crime in the State of Arkansas. Providing justice for Arkansas is our number one priority.
